

TABERNACLE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

702 Seashore Road, Cape May, NJ 08204 - May 20, 2021 ~ Issue No. 61

The word of God is living and active, sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing until it divides soul from spirit, joints from marrow; it is able to judge the thoughts and intentions of the heart. ~Hebrews 4: 12, NRSV

The core theme of our current Deep Impact series on Sunday mornings is that there is no core theme, at least not explicitly. It is basically a compilation of many of my favorite passages in the Bible. Each week, I say that "this is THE one, my favorite." Well, I will say it again about Hebrews chapter 4.

Talking about the Bible is not the same as reading the Bible. There's an old expression, I know it as a song: "Living In the Pages." Another expression? "The more you know, the more you realize what you don't know."

Often, I have shared my life-changing encounter with Jesus (the first one). It is centered upon God's Word, reading the Bible my grandmother gave me on my 12th birthday. The problem is that I did not really open it until my life was a mess a decade later. But that ten-month search through the scriptures that changed my life (the first time) started what is now a 36-year search. And the more I know, the more I realize what I don't know. And I am loving every minute of knowing more.

I am pretty good at the self-pity, "Woe is me" game of life. Yet, if I were to put a percentage on the "success rate" of exploring God's Word to dig me out of that hole, then I would say 100%. The Bible speaks. The question you-me-we need to ask: Does it speak to me? You won't know until you, 1) open it, 2) read it, 3) study it, 4) pray over it and most of all 5) LIVE in it.

"Five Steps to a Better Life." It sounds like the title of my next (first) book. Sorry, but that book has already been written. It's called The Holy Bible.

Never Knowing Enough,

Pastor Glenn

The Joy of Sharing

The little old couple walked slowly into McDonald's that cold winter evening. They looked out of place amid the young families and young couples eating there that night. Some of the customers looked admiringly at them. You could tell what the admirers were thinking. "Look, there is a couple who has been through a lot together, probably for 60 years or more!" The little old man walked right up to the cash register, placed his order with no hesitation, and then paid for their meal. The couple took a table near the back wall and started taking food off of the tray. There was one hamburger, one order of French fries and one drink. The little old man unwrapped the plain hamburger and carefully cut it in half. He placed one half in front of his wife. Then he carefully counted out the French fries, divided them into two piles, and neatly placed one pile in front of his wife. He took a sip of the drink, his wife took a sip and then set the cup down between them.

As the man began to eat his few bites of hamburger the crowd began to get restless. Again you could tell what they were thinking. "That poor old couple. All they can afford is one meal for the two of them." As the man began to eat his French fries one young man stood and came over to the old couple's table. He politely offered to buy another meal for the old couple to eat. The old man replied that they were just fine. They were used to sharing everything.

Then the crowd noticed that the little old lady hadn't eaten a bite. She just sat there watching her husband eat and occasionally taking turns sipping the drink. Again the young man came over and begged them to let him buy them something to eat. This time the lady explained that no, they were used to sharing everything together.

As the little old man finished eating and was wiping his face neatly with a napkin the young man could stand it no longer. Again he came over to their table and offered to buy some food. After being politely refused again he finally asked a question of the little old lady.

"Ma'am, why aren't you eating? You said that you share everything. What is it that you are waiting for? She answered, "The teeth."
